

Flying nowadays is an unpleasant enough experience without having to put up with inconsiderate cell phone users inflicting their (half) of the conversation on hapless fellow airline passengers. Unless an acoustically isolated yack zone is established on airliners, I am against lifting the ban on cell phone use on airborne aircraft.